

ABSTRACT

A method and system that provides for efficient re-synchronization of a PPP link on a U_m interface is provided. When the PPP link is connected, if an indication that the communications of the mobile station is associated with a new network server is detected, only the U_m interface will undergo PPP configuration renegotiation. The method and system does not require the examination of all data packets for determining whether PPP configuration renegotiation is required.

000256 000256 000256